

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An air conditioning apparatus preferentially ventilates a space close to a seat and/or a steering wheel on which a passenger
5 directly makes a contact in a passenger compartment while a vehicle is parked. The uncomfortable feeling of a passenger that might occur when he/she is getting into the parked vehicle can be reduced using a small capacity in the air conditioning as compared to the air conditioning apparatus ventilating the whole
10 space in the vehicle.